Warriors' Slay claims state title

T.J. Slay completed a dream season on the wrestling mat Saturday night when he won the Illinois Class AA state championship.

The 130-pound senior at Granite City High School won the championship with a 4-3 overtime victory — his second overtime triumph in the state tournament — over Morton's Blake Hoerr.

Durbin fears effects of cuts

The rush to cut federal spending and enact the Balanced Budget Amendment could seriously damage the nation's health care system and bring "unacceptable" changes to the quality of life, according to U.S. Rep. Dick Durbin.

The Springfield Democrat spoke to board members and executives at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City Monday. After talking to the board and meeting with reporters, Durbin took a short tour of the Koch Family Health Center.

Ashburn convicted in killing

John Ashburn of Granite City was convicted of first-degree murder Friday in the 1990 shooting and stabbing death of Ricky Muncensturm.

Members of a St. Clair County jury took less than three hours to make up their minds after the four-day trial.

Ashburn will be sentenced next month before Circuit Judge Lloyd Karmeier. He could receive up to 60 years in prison.

Assistant State's Attorney Dennis Hatch alleged during the trial that Ashburn had been after Muncensturm for several weeks over a $38 debt and had told several people that he intended to get Muncensturm.

Dale B. Clark of Granite City was convicted last year in connection with Muncensturm's murder and sentenced to 80 years in prison.

Miller quitting Madison post

After less than a year on the job, Madison School District Superintendent Ken Miller is leaving and will return to his old job in the Roxana School District.

Miller, who started the job in Madison in September, announced his resignation at Thursday's school board meeting. The resignation takes effect July 1.

He cited a desire to spend more time with his family as the reason for his leaving.

OSHA threatens fines

The federal government is threatening to slap the owners of Granite City Steel with big fines for alleged safety violations. The U.S. Department of Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration has issued three citations against National Steel Corp., the parent company of Granite City Steel.

The most serious charge alleges a willful violation of the law for lacking a cover and standard guardrail for a floor opening at the Granite City plant. The potential fine is $55,000.

Chiefs prefer grants

Two local police chiefs are not overjoyed at the news that they are eligible for federal funding for an additional police officer.

Given a choice of three years of 75 percent funding for a new officer for community-oriented policing or an equivalent grant to spend on law enforcement or punishment, police chiefs Dave Ruebhausen of Granite City and Paul Bargiel of Madison both said they would take the grant.

But as he returned to the inside lane, the car began to fish tail and he lost control, told police.

None of the four teens was wearing a seat belt, according to the police report.

Police agencies may cooperate on garage thefts

By Martin Richter
Staff writer

A number of area police departments are considering forming a task force to combat a rash of garage burglaries that has plagued area communities.

Representatives of 15 departments from St. Clair, Monroe, Madison, Monroe and Washington counties met recently in Collinsville to discuss the problem and plan a response, said Lebanon Police Chief Mike Donovan, a primary organizer.

Although Granite City has a large number of garage burglaries, it was not among those participating.

Sgt. Rob Borkowski, said the Collinsville Police Department is considering being a part of the task force.

Donovan and Borkowski said the problem is widespread — Donovan estimated it affects a 20-mile radius in the Metro East, and both said they believe a number of groups are involved, a "mafia" of sorts. He added, "It's just eating up four or five counties," Donovan said. "There's probably a number of groups involved in this, but they're pretty slick."

Economy questions city's swap of property

By Bob Slatte
Staff writer

A Madison businessman wants to know why a proposal to buy city-owned property in downtown Granite City has not been considered by the city.

But city officials say that Andy Edwards, owner of Andy's Auto Body and Towing, 1309 Madison Ave. in Madison, was more than a year late in submitting his offer to buy the former Koepping property, 1837 Madison Ave. in Granite City, for $201,000.

Economy's attorney, Morgan Scroggins of Granite City, said that Edwards first inquired that the city was interested in selling the property Jan. 22, when he read about it on the front page of the Press-Record Journal.

The downtown committee and the City Council expressed a desire to make an effort to close the deal with Dempsey and Adams, the downtown committee Chairman Jim Miller said.

Earlier this month, the council voted unanimously to authorize the mayor to sign a contract parcels owned by Dempsey and Adams along 18th Street.

The next day, Scroggins said, Economy contacted city officials and expressed interest in purchasing the property. Late in the week, Scroggins said, Economy offered $175,000 cash and eventually upped his offer to $201,000.

In a published legal notice, the city requested proposals for the property more than a year earlier, chose the Dempsey and Adams proposal over two others, Peckard in 1994, and has been negotiating with Dempsey and Adams since April 1994, according to a memo from Frank Kraintz, the city's director of economic development.

United Way has $10,000 available

Tri-Cities Area United Way Board has announced the availability of $10,000 to be allocated to programs that address local youth needs.

Funding priority will be given to programs addressing one of the following categories: Teen pregnancy and teen parenting, cultural ignorance, abusive relationships, gangs, violence, drugs and alcohol, poor prenatal care, divorce, death and loss issues.

Applications for funds are available at the United Way office, 1821 Edison in Granite City, and must be submitted to the youth board no later than March 24.

The youth board was developed in 1990 by the local United Way to create a community partnership and an application for the potential of youth. Students on the youth board work with the United Way system to develop and heighten youth input and involvement in meeting health and human care needs of students.

The 1995 youth board members are Granite City students, Brad Green, Eric Johnson, Shonoch, Hillary Sanders, Amanda Ghezzi, Andria Malone and Liz McKechnie. Madison members are Jillian Jones, Lateasha Haynes and Sue Moran. Anna Lyons and Mia Cass represent Venice High School.

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When does the owner of a business establishment have a duty to protect his patrons from harm caused by other people on the premises? Several Illinois courts have held that a business needs to protect its patrons only if the owner is aware of a potentially dangerous condition.

In one recent case, two men attempted to enter a health club and bar. Two employees of the club refused to allow the men into the bar because they appeared to be intoxicated. The employees later testified that they were aware that the men had been drinking and that they had a slight slurred speech. When they were asked to leave, the two intoxicated gentlemen became abusive and obnoxious.

The club employees did not escort the men to the parking lot nor did they call the police. Furthermore, there was no one in the parking lot. The intoxicated men got in their car and an argument ensued with another club patron when there was a near collision of their respective vehicles. The men who had been refused admittance to the club got back into their car and purposely drove into the other man's car and pinned his leg against the vehicle. He eventually had the leg amputated below the knee.

The man who was injured not only sued the driver of the vehicle, but he also brought suit against the club. The basis for his action against the health club was its asserted failure to control the conduct of its patrons while on its premises. The plaintiff alleged that the club should have notified the police of the intoxicated state of the two men. In addition, the injured party felt that the owners of the business establishment should have protected the plaintiff from the intoxicated driver, and that there should have been security personnel in the parking lot.

The Court rejected all of these arguments, and a jury was directed in favor of the health club. The Court noted that there was no evidence concerning any prior incidents with the two intoxicated men. In addition, the Court noted that the club had no way of knowing of the intoxicated driver's violent or dangerous nature. Whereas the employees of the club knew that the individual had been drinking and did not have knowledge of the extent of his intoxication. Therefore, the Court refused to hold the club liable for the injuries.

The fence surrounding Madison High School will be coming down, probably some time this

School fence coming down

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

When John Greco was a junior at Madison High School in the early 1970s, a chain-link fence was put up around the school because of racial unrest.

As a member of the Madison school board, Greco is going to tear it down.

Board members voted unanimously to take down the fence and locked gates.

The brick entryways will remain in place, and part of the chain-link fence will be salvaged and put around the school's parking lot.

Superintendent Ken Miller said when he first came to the district, he never heard of it.

"When I came to Madison, I had to think other people feel the same way when they go by the high school and see it has a fence around it," Miller said. "It makes it look like a fort."

"It's time to come down," Miller said.

Greco added that at the time it was being installed, he did "all I could" to keep it from going up.

"I never liked the fence," he said.

"I resented the fact that they were fencing us in."

As part of the decision-making process, a group of students, staff and teachers was taken in January.

"My goodness, is this school so bad that they have to fence the kids in or fence people out," he said.

Miller said Greco was the driving force behind taking down the fence.

"Greco, in particular, finds that fence offensive I think for lot of the same reasons I did, although he has more personal involvement," Miller said.

Soon after being appointed to the board in November, Greco brought up the fence at a committee meeting.

"It was put up at the height of riots at Madison High School," Greco said. "It was put up to keep outside intruders away. It served its purpose, but now it's time for it to come down."

Greco added that at the time it was being installed, he did "all I could" to keep it from going up.

"I never liked the fence," he said.

"I resented the fact that they were fencing us in."

As part of the decision-making process, a group of students, staff and teachers was taken in January.

While students wanted the fence removed by a majority, two-to-one, most teachers and staff who voted overwhelmingly wanted to fence to remain up.

Totals for the student vote were 177-57, in favor of taking down the fence. Teachers voted 27-10, and other staff voted 27-2. Only about half the teachers voted, while about 85 percent of students and other staff participated.

"If you don't vote you don't care," Greco said.

Miller said the fence would probably not be taken down until school is over.

"I don't think taking the fence down will cause problems," he said.

"I think people are concerned about vandalism, but I think every school in the area — and every other school in Madison — are exposed to potential vandalism."

"I don't think that fence is going to keep out anybody who really wants to break in," he added.

Letters to the editor

EPA boggles the mind — again

TO THE EDITOR:

The Lord moves in mysterious ways. But He can't hold a candle to the Environmental Protection Agency.

After a $500,000 study that took 18 months, the EPA determined that of 49,000 children, 6.5 percent in Granite City had lead levels to warrant additional testing. Upon further testing, it was determined that a whopping one percent, or five, had levels that required intervention. Think about that: $500,000, 18 months, 490 kids tested, five needed attention. Now most normal-thinking people would say, "We spent $500,000 for a lot of money to find five kids, but I guess it's worth it." I know it would be if it was my kid.

And, we thought, that was the end of the lead hazard. Here comes the EPA waving reams of computer print-outs at any and everybody, crying that there is a potential for health hazard in the lead paint. Come a wee small voice of reason and sanity asking, "How far into the future?"

"We don't know," said the EPA indignantly, "but it could happen."

"Consider," said the voice of reason and sanity, "the lead paint is now closed. It was in operation for 100 years and nobody got sick. What makes you think that they will now?"

"Well," said the EPA in a snit, "it might."

It had boggled the voice of reason and sanity.

"We don't know," said the EPA. "The lead is lead, you know."

We are long-time residents of Granite City and would have to command our police and fire departments for a wonderful job well done and our paramedics.

Our best to all of you. Thanks

Speak out on merger plan

TO THE EDITOR:

Faceless Corporate America does not care about you or me. It could care less about the future of our families. This becomes quite evident when you continue to witness the huge mergers and buyouts that are commonplace in our country today.

The recent proposed buyout of the National Food Stores by Schnucks has prompted me to speak up.

Thousands of people will be affected by the buyout of this company.

What will it take to wake you up? The loss of your neighbor's job? Your children's jobs? Will you finally wake up when it's the loss of your job?

You have been paying any attention to what has been going on around you?

Recent buyouts have left many hard-working people jobless. Many others have suffered due to salary cuts and/or loss of benefits.

The cuts and layoffs in area businesses have continued. Mergers and buyouts that are commonplace in our country today.

Longevity has become a hazard in place of an asset in an employee's work record. The very same people who have dedicated their lives to making a success of our company are the ones who come again. The EPA has sent out an announcement that there is going to be a meeting at the Granite City Township Hall.

Be there. Tell them again, "Hell no." If it's contaminated, get it out of here. If it isn't, well, here's a quarter, it call someone who cares.

State tax system needs reform

TO THE EDITOR:

I'm writing to inform you of a recent tax proposal that has been introduced in the Illinois House to overhaul the state's income tax system. The Illinois House Democrats' Working Family and Equity Act is the first major proposal to overturn the state's income tax structure in nearly 25 years.

Many of the people in my district are hard-working people who would like a nice home, send their kids to college and have a liveable retirement. But, since 1970, inflation and other costs have more than doubled, making it harder to achieve their goals. Under the tax cut plan that was introduced, nearly eight million Illinoisans would receive some form of tax relief.

This tax plan has four basic components:

1. Double the $1,000 standard deduction to $2,000 for all dependent children under the age of 18 for families earning less than $100,000.

2. Allow for a three-percent renter's residential credit, so renters would be allowed a deduction similar to the property tax homestead exemption enjoyed by homeowners.

3. Increase the household income eligibility for the state's circuit breaker program from the current $14,000 threshold level to $25,000.

4. Creates an Illinois Earned Income Tax Credit, similar to the federal credit, for working families earning less than $25,000.

If passed and signed into law, the working families Tax Bill Act would do exactly what it says — provide relief to hard-working people and retired seniors who worked hard all their lives.

Enclosed are area residents to write to the governor and ask him to support this proposal so we can help put some punch back into working people's pockets.

STEVE DAVIS
State Representative
11th District

I confess: I've never attended a senior citizen meeting.

But I am in my 16th year as a dues-paying member of the American Association of Retired Persons. I am only newly retired, but you don't have to be retired to be a Retired Person.

Shorthand losing popularity

'The whole world is going too fast for shorthand'

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

Shorthand, the use of symbols to denote words, has been around for a long time, but its future is threatened by technology.

Pat Sullivan, the chief court reporter for the 20th Judicial Circuit, said shorthand got her every job she has ever had. But she realizes shorthand is not used much. "Dictating machines and portable cassette tape recorders have taken over. The whole world is going too fast for shorthand."

Cherri Hunter, a speedwriting shorthand teacher at Belleville West High School, said she learned shorthand with all symbols but had not taught it in several years.

The speedwriting shorthand, which uses short forms of words and letters that are generally recognized as being similar.

"You like this better because they can read it too if the secretary is out," she said. "This is the newer version."

At West, her speedwriting students include those in law, those who want a business career and those who are college bound and want it to take notes in classes.

"It's not just for the business side anymore, but for personal use too," Hunter said.

Ethel Bush, secretary to East St. Louis City Clerk Alzada Carr, said she learned speedwriting first, but it helped her pick up shorthand.

"I think shorthand is easier and I like it best. But your memory bank has got to be in order," she said.

She uses shorthand in city council meetings and during dictation by Carr, but turns it to words to keep her speed up.

"I used to do that every night from the talk shows and I plan to start back," Bush said. "It helps and I don't want to lose."

Sullivan, one of only a handful of court reporters who still uses standard shorthand in court, learned the art more than 30 years ago in high school.

"I was taking it as fast as 120 words per minute, which is about as high as my class was doing, 70 to 80 words per minute," she said. "I had a knack for it, but I wasn't good at typing."

She works for Lockheed Aircraft in California for several years after high school because of her shorthand skills.

Sullivan takes shorthand at 190 words per minute, according to her last test. As a court reporter working with Associate Judge Jan Fiss, she must get every word spoken in court.

But she said she came to the job by accident. She began working in the state's attorney's office in 1961 and was often called upon to type the attorney's statements or even to type notes for trials.

"I got better and better through that experience," Sullivan said.

When the state passed the "blue ballot" in 1969, which required that court reporters be tested, Sullivan was able to get into that position.

She has been a court reporter since January 1966 and was grandfathered into the post when the state began requiring court reporters to take notes as fast as 200 to 225 words per minute.

Despite her own speed, Sullivan said the job is getting harder because people talk faster and several people often talk at once.

"I am being forced out by computers and technology. There was only one machine writer when I started out," she said.

Despite the change in shorthand, Hunter said she still favors the Gregg Shorthand she learned in high school.

"I still love shorthand because I learned it first. I would never want to see it thrown in the back closet and forgotten."

Although it is not taught at Belleville West, Hunter said she shows it to her current students to show them how much easier speedwriting shorthand is.

"Shorthand is not a lost art, but from some people's viewpoint, it is a little difficult to learn," she said.

Having either of the shorthand skills makes one more marketable, but Hunter said she doesn't believe businesses are requiring it much anymore.

Sullivan said she is sure that in the next five years there won't be anyone else taking shorthand in court proceedings in the 20th Judicial Circuit.

As a court reporter, it's more cost-efficient to dictate his message into a tape recorder and give it to his secretary, she said.

hire a private company to clean their blocked lateral lines.

Alderman Jim Miller agreed that the city should do the work but insisted the city can't afford it.

"I'd like to have my grass cut free, my snow shoveled free and my root system free. Let's get this done," Miller said, adding that the city provides police, fire, ambulance and alarm services. He said he submitted requests for street, sidewalk and curb work, including the lateral line request twice since then and the work has not yet been done.

"We can ill afford to resume these calls when other work needs to be done. We have put holes all over that need to be fixed," Miller said.

Alderman Dan Partney agreed with Miller.

"It's a simple matter of economics. We cannot continue to do business the old way unless we want to raise taxes," Partney said, calling the measure "unfunded." Instead, the council was passing along to the "already taxed" street department.

"Apparently every alderman up here has good sidewalks, good streets, good drainage," Partney said.

Alderman Mac Warfield, a former street superintendent, said the street department can provide the service with current equipment and manpower.

Alderman Sandy Crites said that is exactly what the city will ask of the street department.

"I will vote for resuming the service, but we will ask the street department to do more with less," Crites said.

Warfield said if a main sewer line is damaged by a resident trying to unclog a lateral pipe, the repairs could be expensive to the city.

Alderman Kim Affolter agreed.

"We don't live in a city with streets made of gold. But our sewers are," Affolter said, adding that the city provides police, fire, ambulance and alarm services. He said he submitted requests for street, sidewalk and curb work, including the lateral line request twice since then and the work has not yet been done.

an impact in a given fiscal year.

"The tax base here is not sufficient to support the district without substantial state monies, and the state just wasn't there," he said.

The biggest difference doesn't really have anything to do with this year. It had to do with the state bonds the voters approved in November, 1993.

"The district had that influx of money in the last fiscal year, plus the voters approved '75 state bonds for the education fund,'" Miller said. "State support has been pretty steady, and general state aid has increased a fair amount for us. All things combined really helped out."

With luck, Miller said the district could eventually be taken off the State School Board's financial watch list. He said the earliest that could happen would be the 1996-1997 school year, but the district would not know until 1997.

At this point, it's more a question of monitoring what we're doing to make sure we don't fall back into a deficit spending situation," he said. "They need to stay on top of our own situation."

Miller said the district's financial picture is much better than it has been in the last couple of years, state aid has been fairly decent," he said. "There have been minimal increases, but that's certainly better than being static or losing money."

"None of us are in a position to judge in February what the legislature is likely to do in June or July," he said. "I'm just not sure what we'll see a slight increase."

The district's financial situation also depends on the taxes generated by the local economy.

"If we can't increase our revenue sources, even a reasonable amount, and if we can't maintain our expenses, I think we'll be fairly stable," he said. "We're not going to be wealthy, but we're going to survive."

Program aims at youth-related crime

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Organizers are hoping that a program aimed at ending youth-related crime and promoting jobs and education will be a success here as in other parts of the country.

Crime Prevention Inc. is seeking start-up funds in-kind donations and volunteers.

According to spokesman Dave Tanzus of Collinsville, the program should be under way this fall. The group is hoping to raise between $175,000 and $200,000.

Memorials are requested for the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children.

The program is focused on youths who are at risk for getting involved in crime or with gangs because of academic or socio-economic factors.

"Initially, the program will target males age 8 to 26 and later will target females," Tanzus said. "We hope that a sports league, initially for basketball, will be the 'hook' for the program. Other sports, including soccer, might eventually be added."

To be eligible to play in the league, participants must attend either a 90-minute job seminar or a study hall each week.

For school-age participants, tutors will be available to help with various subjects. For older participants, the focus changes to higher education, vocational and employment opportunities.

"The first thing is to give them something to do and to keep them out of trouble and there's also results," Tanzus said.

The program would be held, ideally, in schools or other public buildings where groups of youth are available, Tanzus said.

Business leaders would be able to address seminar participants to tell them about employment opportunities in their companies.

Tanzus said the program has three main goals: to give some people chances they might not have had before.

Anyone in business or involved in the community can get involved in funding or services or in volunteering as a tutor or referee should call Tanzus at 344-3205 or Phil Wisely at 398-7463.

Neighbors told police they saw Hall force the boy into his car. When Hall returned a few minutes later, police were in the neighbor's yard and Hall took off running. Hall apparently called police to report the boy tampering with his vehicle, which had allegedly been stolen.

In an attempt to free police, Hall ran into an occupied house to hide.

He was arrested moments after he took cover.

No trial date has yet been set for the murder charges in Madison County.

Heart Month observance continuing

February is Heart Month and St. Elizabeth Medical Center hopes to become more aware of heart disease and the progress that is being made in fighting it.

Cardiovascular disease is still the number one killer in America. Here are these statistics from the American Heart Association:

✓ 923,000 Americans die each year of cardiovascular disease — that's 42.7 percent of all deaths.

✓ Each year, more than one-sixth of all people killed by cardiovascular disease are under the age of 65.

The economic cost of cardiovascular disease to the United States last year was an estimated $129 billion. This includes physician and nursing services, hospital and nursing home services, the cost of medication and lost productivity due to disability.

Through medical research and education, we are making progress.

From 1981 to 1991, age-adjusted death rates from heart attack declined 30.4 percent. During that same time, age-adjusted death rates from stroke declined 30.5 percent.

In 1995, the American Heart Association projects it will spend $100 million in support of 3,000 medical research projects nationwide.

AHA-funded research has resulted in medical discoveries like:

✓ Linking dietary fat with cholesterol;

✓ Implantation of the first externally powered pacemaker in a patient;

✓ Long-term successful mitral valve replacement surgery;

✓ External cardiac massage (cardiopulmonary resuscitation or CPR);

Kustra to take part in base-saving effort

Supporters of two area military bases are expecting a boost from statewide effort to prevent base closings.

Gov. Jim Edgar on Tuesday announced the appointment of Lt. Gov. Bob Kustra as chairman of Operation Salute, a group that will coordinate efforts of state agencies to prevent Illinois military bases. Edgar said the state will assist local efforts aimed at preventing bases from closing.

The Base Realignment and Closure Committee is expected to compile a list of suggested base closings by March 1.

The Leadership Council, Southwestern Illinois, is spearheading an effort to save Scott Air Force Base near Belleville and the Melvin Price Support Center near Alton. City Spokesman Jim Grandine said the state group will be an asset to the local effort.

"We've been on the phone with the governor's office since the start of Grandine said. "The technical and clerical assistance they are going to provide will be of great assistance."

Financial assistance from the state is also a possibility, Grandine said.

"The governor's statements left the door open for that possibility," he said.

The council is trying to raise more than $1 million for the preservation effort. The group has hired consultants and plans to organize trips to Washington, D.C., to lobby on behalf of the bases.

The group has raised about $300,000 so far, officials said.

Kustra said several state agencies will participate in an effort to save Illinois bases. The state will help local groups by providing specialists and assistance with travel, printing and photography, he said.

Kustra said Scott was of particular importance.

IHSA wrestling tourney on hold

Season could be over pending state's appeal of Mt. Carmel situation

By Tony Panozzo
Staff writer

The Illinois High School Association went to the mat Tuesday when it suspended the Class AA dual-team wrestling series, putting dual-team competition across the state and leaving the status of the rest of the season in doubt.

The IHSA's announcement, which came just 1 1/2 hours before the start of the Granite City Class AA Sectional, followed a refusal by the Illinois Supreme Court to reconsider an Illinois Appellate Court ruling handed down last month concerning the eligibility of Chicago Mount Carmel.

THE IHSA LOST on appeal for the second time after declaring Mount Carmel ineligible for the state tournament series earlier this month.

Mount Carmel, which gained an injunction to postpone a Feb. 7 regional meet between Chicago Marist and Harvey Thornton, won the latest legal battle with the IHSA and remained in contention for the fourth straight state title. But the IHSA refused to continue the state tournament Tuesday, ordering dual-team sectional managers to cancel competition and take a major stand toward ending the season.

The IHSA accompanied its decision with an announcement that it would begin an investigation of dual teams involved in sectional competition throughout the state. But Tuesday's news was an unanticipated turn of events that caught sectional teams by surprise.

IT WAS A SHOCKING BLOW to the Granite City Warriors, ranked second for much of the year in the state behind Mount Carmel and the favoritism to advance to state for the second straight year.

"To do what they did is the worst decision they could possibly make," Granite City coach Mike Garland said. "The IHSA

Trojans knock off Althoff in regional opener

By Tony Panozzo
Staff writer

After stumbling into the postseason with a three-game losing streak, Madison High got a fresh start Tuesday and made the most of it.

The Trojans beat Althoff 67-59 in the first round of the Dupo Class A Regional. Madison, seeded sixth in the eight-team regional, upended the third-seeded Crusaders and advanced to the regional semifinals today at 7:30 p.m. against second-seeded Freeburg, a 66-46 winner over Venice on Tuesday. Top-seeded Lebanon will meet No. 4 Wescalin in the other semifinal at 6 p.m.

THE WINNERS WILL meet for the regional at 7:30 p.m. Friday night. The Trojans are hoping for a possible rematch with Lebanon, which defeated Madison 69-65 on Jan. 24. This is the second season," Madison coach A. Collins said. "This is what we work for, you know. If we play our game, we can win." The Trojans produced one of their best efforts this season against Althoff, taking control in the second half and surviving a rally by the Crusaders down the stretch. Madison took a 49-32 lead, its biggest of the game, into the fourth quarter and hung on for the win.

"It's been a long time since we've had a comfortable lead," Collins said. "We've been deserving this win for a long time. We haven't been able to get over the hump."

Collins said Spraggins' technical gave the Trojans some extra incentive heading into the second half.

"That got the kids up," Collins said. "There was something to get us going, and our kids responded."

Petroski picks SIUE

By Tony Panozzo
Staff writer

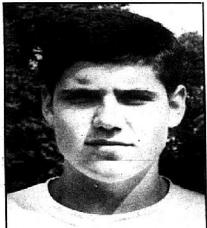

Granite City High senior Shawn Petroski ended his single-season regular school with a goal to attend SIUE next year after a remarkable prep career. As a senior, Petroski earned all-Midwest honors and led the Warriors to a runner-up finish at the state tournament.

A THREE-YEAR starter, Petroski excelled at Althoff last fall, at 6-2, 205 pounds. Petroski was considered one of the St. Louis area's best college prospects and was recruited by approximately 25 schools.

Petroski decided to stay close to home and settled on SIUE after considering offers from St. Louis University, Washington State and Alabama-Birmingham.

"I wish him all the luck in the world," Granite City coach Gene Baker said. "He had a tough year. I think it was more of a family decision to stay close to home."

"This is a big coup for SIUE, because they're getting a premerior scorer. I think he'll be a very big part of their future." Dupo coach Mike Petroski will play at the Division II level at SIUE. The Cougars are moving down to Division II next year after joining the Great Lakes Valley Conference.

Shawn Petroski

Petroski is the second Warrior to commit after goalkeep-er Mike Slay signed with Western Illinois University.

A third senior, Corey Kesler, was verbally committed to Evansville.

Baker said Paulie Buechler is close to committing to UAB.

Poor shooting fatal for Red Devils at regional

By Rob Raphael
Staff writer

In a flashback from a week ago, the Venice Red Devils blew more than their share of layups Tuesday night. This time, there was more at stake.

Against East St. Louis Lincoln on Feb. 14, Venice came in with a chance to win, and played well at times, but couldn't convert the close-in shots.

THE SAME WAS true Tuesday as Venice lost 36-30 to the Freeburg Midgels in the first round of the Dupo Class A Regional. The Red Devils' season is over at 12-16.

Freeburg, the regional's third seed, took advantage of Venice's bad shooting by hitting 47 percent of their shots, including seven for 14 from the three-point line. The Devil finished 18 for 54 (33 percent) from the field.

The Midgels (14-12) move on to play Madison in the semifinals at 8 p.m. Thursday.

"We didn't come ready to play," said Lincoln coach Kevin Harris. "We seemed ready mentally, but physically when the game started we weren't ready. We didn't clear out on the boards. They were beating us on the break and we played no good defense."

And what about that shooting, coach?

"Layups and free throws are supposed to be the easiest shots, and we couldn't make either. And practically all we did in Kevin Roberts and the Red Devils finished the season with a 12-16 record.
